Villages, woodland trails, green meadows, water, views

In Brief

Here is a walk between two villages of contrasting size and character, one having a notable gastropub, but where you can just relax with a drink and bar snack if you like (ring 01403-790480 to enquire at the Chequers Inn). But the villages are only an excuse for a magical wander through some of the most varied and charming West Sussex scenery, with a succession of woodland paths and green meadows. Each twist (and there are many) seems to yield a surprise until finally you have a comfortable easy section on the Sussex Border Path taking you back to the 13th-century church in Rudgwick.

Sep 2023: the "broken bridge" is now repaired!

Jun 2025: the pub in Rudgwick is "temporarily" (read "permanently"?) closed.

All the paths are clear and well-made with no evidence of nettles or scratchy undergrowth even in high summer. But in winter, or wet conditions, some of the paths turn to mud and boots are necessary. If your dog is not too large, he can certainly join you, since most (but not all) the stiles seem to have a gap, either built-in or by accident. You may need to slip him off the lead if you see cattle.

The walk begins in the village of Rudgwick, West Sussex, postcode RH12 3EB. There are some roadside spaces near the (ex-)Kings Head and in side roads such as Lynwick Street. The Kings Head had a big car park but it's not certain whether it's still available (this walk is too long to be counted as a pub walk). The best place to park is on an off-road strip just 100m south of the turn-off point of this walk, www.w3w.co/digit.resemble.pats, postcode RH12 3HF: with the pub on your left, drive along the main road another 400 yds to a side road called The Ridge; the parking strip starts here and your start for the walk is only a short distance back. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

"Rudgwick" means "farm on the ridge". This was once a poor Wealden community living off pig droving. The Holy Trinity church was built around 1260. The parish has no less than ninety timber-framed buildings. Millions of years ago this area lay on the shore of a huge lake and the clay that subsequently formed is now excavated by the brickworks. In 1985, they dug up some bones of a polacanthus dinosaur (a quadrupedal spiky species from the early Cretaceous). It turned out to be unique and now bears the name "Polacanthus Rudgwickensis" ("many prickles from Rudgwick").

The "Kings Head" is sadly closed. Appearances are not too promising as it may end up (like so many) as a residence.

- 1 With the (ex-)Kings Head pub on your left, walk down the main road for 300m until you reach Rudgwick Chapel on your right. (Or, if you parked on the off-road strip, walk back 100m.) Between two cul-de-sacs, Windacres Farm Lane and Summerfold, turn left at a small signpost (that's right if you parked on the off-road strip) on a footpath which runs parallel to a tarmac drive on your left. This path soon bends right and left between wild meadows and enters woodland. It turns left again to take you over a bridge with a rail to meet a 3-way fingerpost. Ignore the stile here and keep left. Your path winds its way up through a band of trees. You come over a stile into a large grassy meadow. Keep ahead along the short side to go over a stile to meet a crossing bridleway and a 4-way fingerpost.

- 2 Cross straight over the bridleway. You are now in a charming wood with many tempting paths – but your route is straight ahead, along the right-hand edge. In 250m, at a T-junction with a 3-way fingerpost, turn right. In only 40m you pass a 3-way fingerpost on your left, just before a lighter area. Keep right here, leaving the wood, on the start of a wide path. Immediately, at a large metal gate, abandon the path by turning right through a wooden swing-gate into a meadow. Keep to the left-hand side of the meadow and, in the far corner, go through a new metal swing-gate. Follow the fenced path round the right-hand edge of a pasture, then between two pastures. Go through a wooden swing-gate and turn right along the left-hand edge of a pasture where you may find goats and alpacas.
- 3 Go through a wooden swing-gate to join a tarmac drive coming from Hyeswood. Keep straight ahead, crossing another drive and a short patch of grass to a fingerpost and stile under a large oak (note the tree house). Cross the next small meadow to go over a stile. Follow the right-hand side of a large meadow and go through a metal kissing-gate into the precincts of Furnace Lakes. This is a complex of six lakes stocked with carp, catfish and several other species; you will see other lakes and ponds on this walk – definitely angler's country.
- 4 Ignore an angler's path left and keep straight ahead on a wide gravel drive. You are joined by a stream on your left. The large pond is hidden beyond a bank on your left and you pass two small ponds on your right. Keep right, soon entering an open grassy space. Fork right across the grass to go over a long bridge-with-rails across a stream, leading up to a modern kissing-gate. Continue up the left-hand side of a large sheep pasture towards the beautifully restored Furnace Barn. A kissing-gate and hedged path lead out to a tarmac drive.
- 5 Keep right on the drive and immediately turn left on a gravel drive. The drive leads you through a metal kissing-gate beside a large metal gate to enter the vast Roman Woods which will be your haunt for the next 2km. Stay on this very broad drive, ignoring a wide junction on your right after 350m. You pass a picnic and camp site on your right. 200m after the previous junction you approach another private junction on the right. Just before the junction, turn right at a marker post on a narrow path into the woods. Don't miss this unexpected turn!
- 6 This little path crosses a wide drive next to a large wooden gate and continues on its narrow course, next to ranch fencing on your right. In 150m or so, you meet an oblique T-junction. Veer right here on a wider forest path. This path elbows left after 120m beside a wooden gate. In another 150m, you reach a T-junction and a chunky rustic seat with a large wooden gate and a forestry yard close by on your right. Ignore the gate and instead turn left (important!) and immediately right at a 3-way fingerpost onto a bridleway. Follow this comfortable woodland path, ignoring a footpath on the left after 350m. Your path enters a darker beech wood and emerges from the forest, passing the pretty timbered Burnt House. Keep straight on and turn left at a T-junction onto a tarmac drive (a section of Stane Street, a Roman Road). Ignore a footpath and steps on your right and continue to come out to the road in Rowhook next to the Chequers Inn.

The “Chequers Inn” is both a picturesque village inn where you can simply sup a few ales with the locals, and also a notable gastropub thanks to its celebrated chef Tim Neal. Tim hooked up with local farmers to source some of his fresh produce. As a starter there is the house speciality of “bacon roly poly with fried quails egg”; as a main there is calves’ liver, a rare treat nowadays. Food can be served in the very attractive garden.

-  7 After your sojourn at the inn, turn left on the road, using the grass verge on the other side, passing Rowhook Farm. Ignore a footpath on your right (see the “Rowhook Pub Walk” in this series) but immediately turn left at a signpost, up a bank, over a stile into a pasture. Follow the left-hand edge and, in 200m, at the far corner, turn right following a line of oaks on your left. In 50m or so, keep ahead to bear a small fraction left through a wide gap in the hawthorns to enter a new meadow. Turn left alongside a very mature hedgerow on your left. There may be beef cattle somewhere in this vast area where they roam free; walkers carried on regardless, clapping hands if necessary to shoo them. In the far corner, go through a band of trees to meet an irregular 4-way fingerpost [\[2023: with the diagonal finger missing\]](#).
-  8 Veer a little to the right to cross this meadow diagonally, aiming a good 50m to the left of a low house. Head for the corner of a jutting wood with a marker post where the meadow suddenly opens out. Here your route veers just a fraction to the right, going diagonally across the grass to a wide gap in the trees on the other side, with good views. Go through the gap into a new meadow at a marker post. Keep to the left-hand side and, in the corner, go through a band of trees into another meadow which contains a pond. Keep to the right of the pond and head for a close-by protruding line of trees. Keep to the right of the trees and follow them into the corner. (In fact the trees conceal a sheer wooded gulch.) Just after the corner, at 2-arm fingerpost, go left over a stile into a deep woodland realm.
- 9 The terrain has changed dramatically. Keep on the narrow path amidst the dense forest backdrop, going over a new (2023) bridge-with-rails, after which the path veers left up a short staircase and continues to climb. At the top, veer left over a bank and a stile into a field. Turn right along the edge of the field. As the edge curves left, suddenly on your right is an angler’s pond (with another pond hidden to its right). Stay on this agreeable green margin, soon passing a lily pond, overwept by a large willow. You reach a 4-way fingerpost beside a tarmac drive.
-  10 Cross straight over the tarmac onto a footpath opposite. It leads out shortly into an attractive sloping meadow sporting a lily pond. Turn immediately left along the edge of the meadow. Your path rises, circling the edge. At the top keep right, as signed, on a wider path. In 150m you reach a T-junction with a concrete drive. You have reached the Sussex Border Path (SBP). Turn left on the SBP. You now have an assured and easy return to Rudgwick.
-  11 In 100m, ignore a footpath on your right and continue on the concrete. In 400m, where the concrete elbows left, go right at a signpost, still on the SBP, on a fenced grassy path between hayfields. At the top there is a rustic bench under an ash tree where it is pleasant to sit and admire a view of the Greensand Hills. Continue past an unneeded stile and cross straight over a tarmac drive, thus temporarily leaving the SBP. Follow this easy semi-tarmac track between fields. After ½ km, you will notice a stile on your right. Ignore it but continue 30m further to meet a 4-way fingerpost.

- 12 Turn right at the fingerpost and go through a metal kissing-gate to re-join the SBP. In only 10m, at a yellow arrow, join a narrow path between a fence and a hedge. The path becomes a tarmac drive. Where the drive curves left, at a signpost, leave the drive by turning right on a grass path under a line of large oaks. You pass through a modern kissing-gate into the churchyard of Rudgwick Church. Follow the path past the church on your right and go right-left down a flagstone path to the road, next to the site of the Kings Head, where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: Rudgwick lies on the B2128 road from Shere and Ewhurst, but that picturesque route is too slow. If coming from the London area, or the M25, the simplest way to Rudgwick is on the A29 (Bognor) road, via Dorking and Ockley. When you reach the roundabout and T-junction, turn right as for A29 Bognor, but in $\frac{3}{4}$ mile, at the next roundabout, ignore the left turn for A29 Bognor and keep straight on, as for Guildford. In nearly $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles, turn right for Rudgwick. (If you come this way, from the south, the parking strip is on your right, 300 yds before the centre of the village.) You can also reach Rudgwick from Guildford on the A281. Rudgwick is also near Horsham and Crawley.

By bus/train: bus 63 from Horsham or Guildford, not Sunday. Check the timetables.
